Reconstruction Basics

The South was divided into five military districts. The army, or martial law, would govern the districts. Congress readmitted Tennessee to the Union because it had already met all of the requirements of the legislation. This image is courtesy of learnnc.org.

In the United States, tenant farmers often owned their own mules and equipment, but sharecroppers did not and were a lower economic status than tenant farmers.

Sharecropping lasted in the South from the Reconstruction period through the 1950s. This image shows sharecroppers in a Bulloch Country, Georgia tobacco field in 1949. This image is courtesy of the Georgia Department of Archives and History.

Although the Fifteenth Amendment was ratified in 1870, the promise of the 15th Amendment would not be fully realized for almost a century.

Through the use of poll taxes, literacy tests, and other means, "white" controlled Southern state legislatures effectively denied the vote to African Americans until the Voting Rights Act of 1965. "White" Southerners called these Northerners "carpetbaggers" because they carried inexpensive suitcases made of carpet fabric. They were portrayed as penniless adventurers who arrived with all their possessions in carpetbags.
